Objectives

The Law Reform Commission Act provides that:

"The Commission shall take and keep under review all the law of the province, including statute law, common law and judicial decisions, with a view to its systematic development and reform, including the codification, elimination of anomalies, repeal of obsolete and unnecessary enactments, reduction in the number of separate enactments and generally the simplification and modernization of the law."

Topics for the Commission's research program are brought before meetings of the Commission for consideration. These topics may originate from a recommendation of the Minister of Justice, the Commission and its staff, the judiciary, the legal profession, other professional organizations, or the public generally.

Once the research study in a particular project is completed, the matter is placed before the Commission for discussion and consideration. The Commission may decide to issue background papers or tentative proposals for circulation to the public in order to obtain criticism and comment prior to the preparation of a final report. This may entail public meetings, hearings and workshops. The Commission's recommendations are embodied in its final report to the Minister of Justice.

The Commission works closely with the Department of Justice in formulating research projects and facilitating adoption of its proposals. The Commission has also made an ongoing contribution on behalf of the province to the national work of the Uniform Law Conference of Canada. Commissioners and the Director of Research have served as members of the Conference for many years.

The Commission is a member of the Federation of Law Reform Agencies of Canada.

The Law Reform Commission is financed by the Province of Saskatchewan and the Law Foundation of Saskatchewan, and receives annual matching grants of $60,000 from each.

Commissioners, other than the judicial and provincial government representatives, receive honoraria from the Law Reform Commission of Saskatchewan based on the Order-in-Council by which they are appointed. The Chair receives $235 per day when engaged in work of the Commission and Commissioners receive $155 per day. The Director of Research is employed on a contractual basis at the rate of $70,000 per annum. Effective October 1, 2004, the Commission determined that the Chair should be engaged for the purpose of providing professional services, as are required, in addition to her duties as Chair of the Commission, in order to enhance the Commission's ability to produce and disseminate its reports and to liaise with individuals and organizations that are interested in the work of law reform. The Chair is paid an annual stipend of $12,000 to provide these services.

Research Program and Activities

Inventory of Law Reform Issues

The Commission has compiled an inventory of law reform issues in Saskatchewan. The inventory process was designed to identify emerging trends in law and society, as well as more discrete topics for law reform. Consultation with interested groups, individuals, and organizations focused on identification of issues and challenges, grouped about eight major themes:

- Democracy
- Aboriginal Peoples
- Human Rights
- Families and Children
- Vulnerable Adults
- Communities and the Environment
- Administrative Law and Procedure
- Technical Legal Issues

The inventory serves as a basis for the future work of the Commission. The Commission is also hopeful that it will assist legislators, researchers, and others interested in law reform to identify emerging needs of the justice system in Saskatchewan.

Implementation of recent projects

The Department of Justice is currently preparing a new Trustees Act and a new Evidence Act based on recommendations made by the Commission in its reports Proposals for Reform of the Trustees Act (2002) and Research Paper: The Saskatchewan Evidence Act (2004).

Citation of Commission reports by the courts

Commission reports and other publications continue to be frequently referred to in decisions of the courts in Saskatchewan and elsewhere in Canada and the Commonwealth. Most recently, the Commission's Proposals Relating to Perpetuities and Accumulations was cited by the British Columbia Supreme Court in Mott Estate v. Shaver [2007] BCJ no.59.

A recent search of reported Canadian decisions found that the Commission's work has been referred to in 47 reported decisions, including 36 Saskatchewan decisions, and 3 decisions of the Supreme Court of Canada. Commission publications on The Personal Property Security Act, limitation of actions, and the status of English statute law in Saskatchewan are the most frequently cited.

Current Research Program

Aboriginal Peoples

The Law Reform Commission of Saskatchewan has an interest in exploring the issues of Aboriginal self-government because of the significant Aboriginal population in this province and the need to find positive ways in which the Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal communities of Saskatchewan can live together harmoniously. The Chair of the Commission, Merrilee Rasmussen Q.C., presented a paper, The Role of the Uniform Law Conference in relation to Aboriginal Laws, to the Uniform Law Conference of Canada at its meeting in Yellowknife in 2002. Following up, the Chair presented a paper to the Conference in its August 2006 looking specifically at the role of the Conference in extending its Commercial Law Strategy to the Aboriginal jurisdictional context.

The Law Reform Commission of Saskatchewan has also completed a joint project with the Law Commission of Canada in relation to the issue of Aboriginal self-government in Canada. The project was a theoretical paper developed by John Whyte, Q.C., a senior fellow of the Saskatchewan Institute of Public Policy and former Deputy Minister of Justice for Saskatchewan.

The Commission continues to work with the Saskatchewan Institute for Public Policy to investigate issues relating to Aboriginal self-government in a broad social and political context. Ian Peach, Director of the Institute, and the Chair of the Commission prepared a joint paper which was presented at a conference called, "First Nations, First Thoughts" on May 5 and 6, 2005, at the Institute for Canadian Studies, University of Edinburgh.

The paper provides an analysis of the innovative provisions of the Saskatchewan Treaty Governance negotiations between Canada, Saskatchewan and First Nations that made it possible to consider a plan for a province-wide self-government framework. The key provisions were those that created a context for recognition of First Nations' own constitutions and membership codes, and, most importantly, a relationship of laws regime that would recognize that First Nation laws could, in appropriate circumstances, displace federal and provincial laws.

Using this paper as a base, the Chair presented a further paper to the "Moving towards Justice" Conference hosted by the Saskatchewan Institute of Public Policy on March 1, 2 and 3, 2006, titled, Honouring the Treaty Acknowledgement of First Nation Self-Government: Achieving Justice Through Self-Determination.

Human Rights

Handbook of Privacy Law and Legislation in Saskatchewan: The Commission is working together with the Saskatchewan Information and Privacy Commissioner to develop a handbook of privacy law from a Saskatchewan perspective.

Vulnerable Adults

Powers of Attorney: At the initiative of the Saskatchewan Law Reform Commission, representatives of law reform agencies in British Columbia, Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba have met to discuss joint projects. The first such joint project was initiated in 2003 in relation to enduring powers of attorney, and specifically facilitating recognition of the enduring power of attorney document, clarifying the duties of attorneys, and issues for persons interacting with attorneys. A joint consultation paper was approved by all western law reform agencies in 2004, and consultations in the four jurisdictions have now been completed. The four jurisdictions will produce a final report in 2007.

Older Adults and the Law: Saskatchewan has a proportionally larger population of senior citizens than any other province in Canada. The Commission has identified legal issues affecting older citizens as a priority for future research. The British Columbia Law Institute (BCLI) has created an Institute for Elder Law Studies. The work of the BCLI continues to be an extremely useful foundation for the Commission as it investigates elder law topics. In October, 2007, Michael Finley, the Commission's Director of Research, presented a paper, Financial Issues of Elders: Assessing the Approach of Law Reform, to the Second Annual Conference on Elder Law sponsored by the BCLI.

The Commission issued two final reports on issues affecting older citizens in November, 2006: Report on Family Financial Arrangements: Guarantees and Report on Reverse Mortgages.

A consultation paper, Corporate Fiduciary Services: Should corporate trustees and fiduciaries other than trust companies be permitted? will be issued shortly.

Communities, Health and the Environment

Liability of Landowners to Recreational Users of Land: A final report, Report on Landowners' Liability for Injury to Recreational Visitors, was issued in November, 2006. The report recommends limiting the liability of landowners for injuries to persons entering rural and wilderness land for recreational purposes.

Access to light for solar power generation: The Commission was asked by the Minister of the Environment to consider ways in which access to light for solar panels might be given legal protection by restricting development on neighbouring properties that would block sun light. The Commission has accepted the invitation, and a report will be issued in 2007.

Light Pollution: The Commission was asked by the Minister of the Environment to consider legal options to address "light pollution:" Excessive use of artificial lighting that increases energy demand. The Commission has accepted the invitation, and a report will be issued in 2007.

Vaccination Law: The Commission will shortly issue a consultation paper on immunization and it law. This project responds to growing concern emerging infectious diseases on one hand, and concern about the safety of childhood vaccination on the other. The paper discusses compensation for vaccine-related injury, compulsory vaccination, and issues of informed consent and refusal.

Administrative Law and Procedure

The Commission's Administrative Law project responds to a perceived need for clear and accessible legislative guidance for the wide range of decision-making by boards and tribunals operating under provincial law.

The first phase of the project focuses on the concept of a model procedural code to guide the work of administrative tribunals established under Saskatchewan legislation. A consultation paper was issued in May 2003. The paper was circulated to interested individuals and organizations and the Commission met with several groups and individuals as part of its consultation process. A final report and Model Procedural Code has been completed and printed. The model code has been distributed to administrative tribunals in the province. Additional copies are available from the Saskatchewan Queen's Printer.

Handbook of Professional Disciplinary Procedure: Draft for consultation – The Handbook is the second phase of the Commission's administrative law project and considers procedure before disciplinary committees and tribunals of self-governing professions regulated by Saskatchewan legislation. The Handbook is intended to be a practical guide to the procedure of investigation and discipline committees of professional organizations that have been given authority to discipline their members by statute. It is designed primarily for use by professional organizations that have not developed elaborate procedural rules unique to their needs. The Handbook is intended to make compliance with legal rules of procedure designed to protect the rights of parties to discipline proceeding less difficult for committee members who are not legally trained. Several professional associations have indicated an interest in the Commission's work in this regard. The Handbook has also been approved by the Commission in principle and will be printed and released in 2007.

A third phase will look at appeals from administrative tribunals. Two component of this phase have been identified by the Commission. The first is penalties. These are penalties assessed in lieu of prosecution of regulatory offences. Administrative penalties are controversial because they are assessed by the Department responsible for regulation rather than by an independent tribunal.

The second component is a more general review of appeals for decisions of administrative tribunals and discipline committees to finds ways to ensure fairness and uniformity in the grounds for appeal and appellate procedure.

The Commission anticipates that consultation papers on these topics will be issued in 2007.

Technical Legal Issues:

Wills and Estates: During the course of consultations with members of the Saskatchewan bar as part of the Commission's inventory of law reform issues, concern about several matters involving the law of wills and administration of estates were identified. The Commission issued its Consultation Paper: Revocation of Wills in October 2004. A final report was issued in May 2006.

Title Insurance: The Commission has embarked upon a Joint Project with the Manitoba Law Reform Commission on the issue of title insurance in a Torrens system of land title registration. A joint research paper was prepared to form the basis of consultations in the two jurisdictions. Consultations occurred in 2005-06. A joint report was issued in March, 2007.

Fraudulent Conveyances and Preferences: The Commission is working with the Uniform Law Conference of Canada and its Commercial Law Strategy on a project to revise the law on Fraudulent Conveyances and Preferences. At present, this area of the law is principally governed by the Fraudulent Conveyances, 1570, a part of the English law received in Saskatchewan when the Northwest Territories, and later the province, were created.
